

Dear FCC,

I am sick of these types of issues. I am a paying customer for XM radio and I really enjoy the commercial-free programming provided by XM. It is refreshing to hear instant traffic and weather without the interruption of commercials. You have no right to stop these services, since I am paying for them each and every month. It figures that you would waste your time on an issue like this, as usual, to take away what tax paying Americans have the right to enjoy. It doesn't surprise me though that Regular AM & FM corporations are concerned with XM radio services, since they have a lot of revenues to think about (Hey, that's what it's really about, isn't it?). The FCC needs to wake up and say no to these powerful conglomerates when it comes to our rights and XM's right to broadcast traffic and weather.

Neil Ritter